The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights is an independent, bipartisan agency established by Congress and directed to study and collect information relating to a denial of the right to vote because of race, color, religion, sex, age, disability, national origin, or in the administration of justice. State Advisory Committees to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights are composed of bi-partisan state citizens who serve without compensation. The Committees advise the Commission of civil rights issues in their states, providing recommendations and advice regarding such matters to the Commission.
